

Connecting Worship & Work

<http://www.licc.org.uk/work-forum/connecting-church-work/connecting-worship-work/>

The Gospel is good news for work, workers and workplaces, but we often overlook work as a context for God's mission and discipleship.

Sunday worship is one significant context in which to encourage the many working people in our churches to make a difference where they are throughout the week.

By celebrating God's gift of work, and supporting working people when we gather on a Sunday we recognise our work as worship. Every day becomes God's day, and our daily work is seen as part of God's big mission.

This Time Tomorrow (TTT)

As part of the service, ask one of your workers two or three questions about what they do and the challenges they face - and then pray for them.

Ideas for Worker-Friendly Church Services

Much of what we do already in gathered church can connect us with daily life and work. Here are some ideas from Supporting Christians at Work, a one-pager of suggestions and an extract from a workshop on connecting liturgy with life.

Prayers for Working People

Join a Prayer Journey with one-line prayer prompts via email, or use Pocket Prayers for Work - prayers written by workers for workers.

Why Work Matters to God

Some of the theology behind a biblical view of work.

Making it Last

A range of other resources to help you maintain a vision for workplace ministry - Sunday speakers, workshops and our online bookstore.